LOCALE

FROM THE INTELLECT TO THE HEART

“I love them that love me; with me are riches and glory, glorious riches and justice. For my fruit is better than gold and the precious stone and my blossoms than choice silver. I walk in the way of justice, in the midst of the paths of judgment that I may enrich them that love me and may fill their treasures.”

IN MEMORIAM

“As the last bell struck, a peculiar sweet smile shone over his face, and he lifted up his head a little, and quickly said ‘Adsum’ and lo, he, whose heart was as that of a little child, had answered to his name and stood in the presence of the Master.”

THEOLOGY AND PHILOSOPHY

A Break Between Classes.

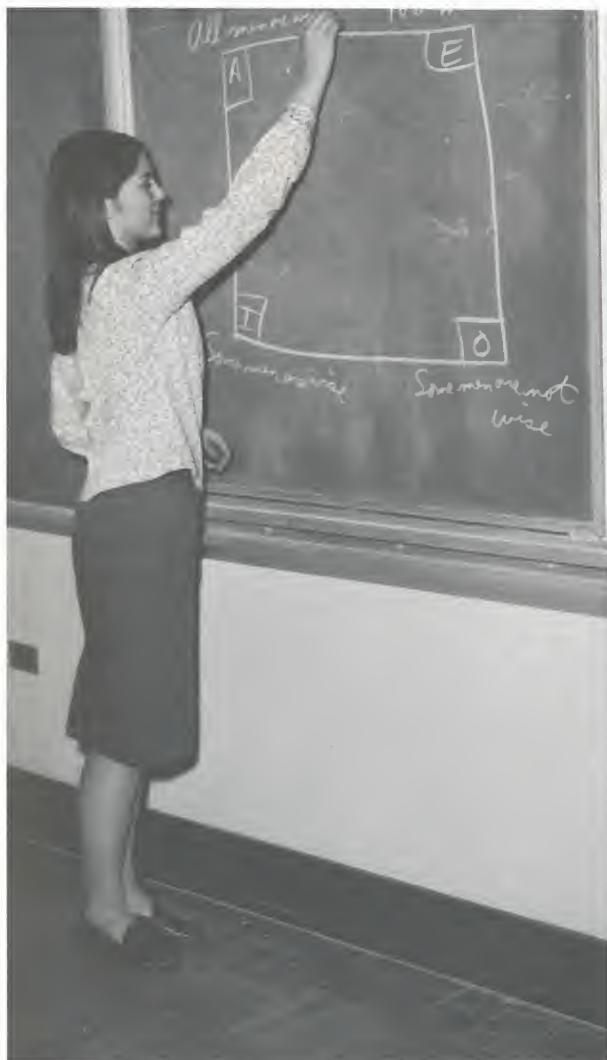

Linda Nastasiak Introduces A Theology Panel.

Teaching From A Table Top.

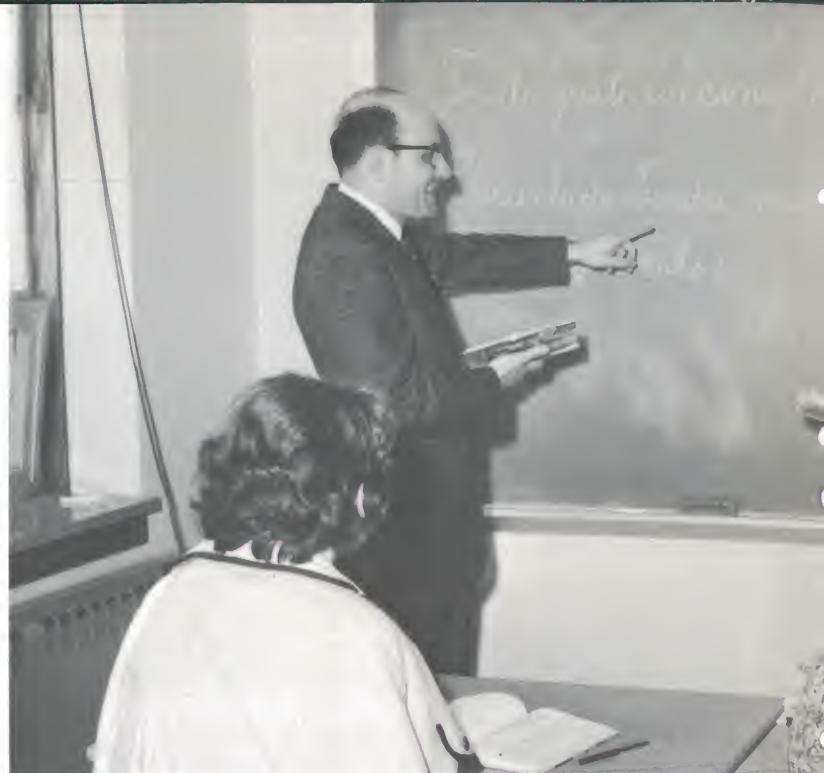

Could This Be Logical?

"Education should have as its fundamental aim to bring to all students a deep, abiding knowledge of herself in all her human relationships—individual and social, material and spiritual. This should include an understanding of her ideals and her aspirations, of her search for God as well as her struggle for existence."

Through Theology, she achieves a relationship with and a knowledge of Christ and His Church. Through Philosophy, she is able to reach a higher degree of understanding of herself and her relationship to society and to the world at large. Without this rich, rewarding responsibility, she cannot realize the fullness of life in all its aspects here on earth. With her newly acquired knowledge, she may go forth with basic beliefs strong enough to achieve her ideals and aspirations.

Language, primarily, can be the only key to man's relationship with Society. Communication with one another can break the barrier caused by misunderstanding and ignorance. The knowledge of one or more tongues renews faith in oneself and in her ability to communicate. Because of close international relationships in the world during this period of progress in the twentieth century, languages taught in schools and colleges play a greater part in to-day's world and attract many students eager to communicate with others.

PHYSICAL SCIENCES

First Ingredient . . . One Finger.

Labeling A Botany Specimen.

Chemically Confused.

The understanding student craves a knowledge of herself in all her relationships. Rational beings and their constituents, irrational beings and their constituents—all pose many questionable theories to those interested in the many aspects of the physical world about them, over them, and under them.

Beware! Poisonous Gas.

Current Events vs. History

SOCIAL SCIENCES

"A Funny Thing Happened On My Way To Sociology . . ."

In Philosophy and Theology, she comes to an understanding of her relationship to God, so in Social Sciences she comes to understand her relationship to others in society. In Sociology, American Government, and Economics, she becomes aware of the social, political and economic principles that shape her world. She delves into the past in Western Civilization and American History to discover the primary ideas and institutions of world society, as they have evolved from the past. By a growing realization of the principles that govern world social structure, she will be better able to contribute to it.

FINE ARTS

Absorbing Sweet Sounds.

Demonstrating A Meaningful Pattern.

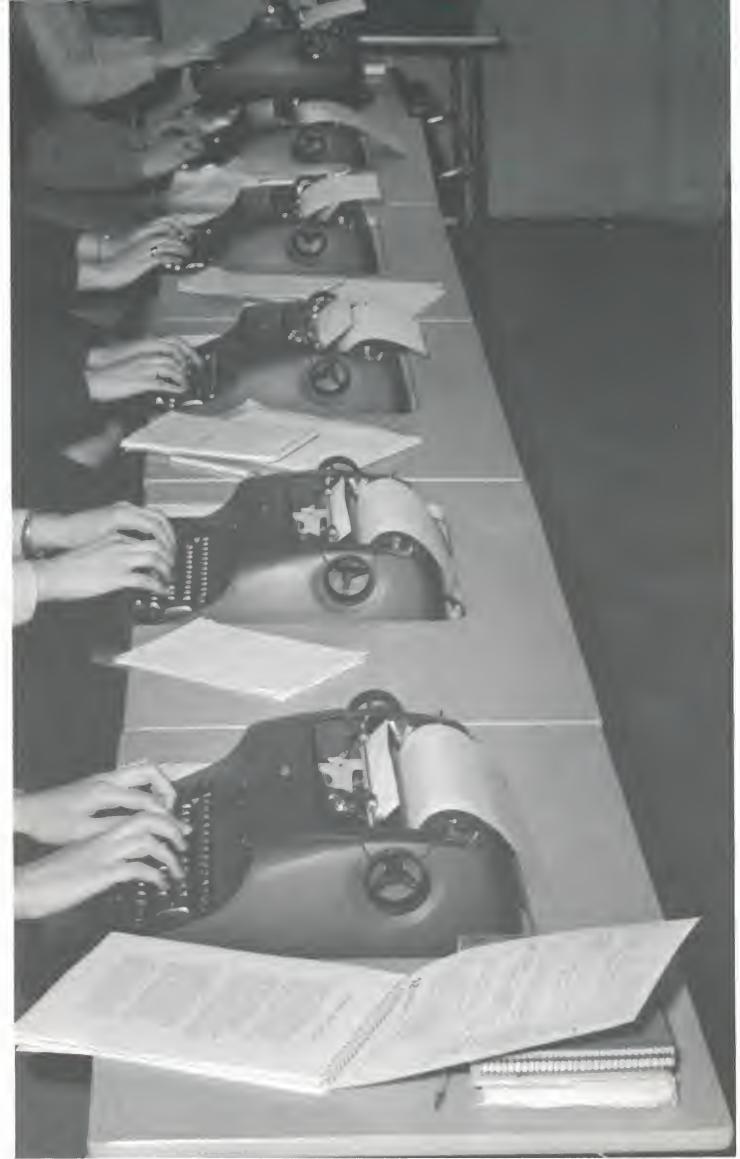

A Clarity Of Voice And Diction.

Unfolding The Records Of Music History.

The Fine Arts—Voice and Diction, and Music Appreciation—develop in the student a common ground of understanding of the world she lives in and an ability to communicate with that world. Music, as an art, reflects life; therefore, it reflects the student herself and affords her a better view of her life. In Voice and Diction, she learns to communicate the ideas that have been wrought from self-understanding.

Business subjects enable the secretarial student to prepare for her vocational needs so that she may contribute her skills and techniques efficiently to the society in which she lives. The wide variety of courses enables each student to develop skills that will prepare her to be of assistance in one of three major areas—as an executive assistant or in the legal and medical fields of service.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Since the aim of Christian education is the development of "the sane mind in a sound body", Physical Education is a necessary, not an extraneous, part of her college curriculum. The aim of the course is to provide types of physical activity that are wholesome, healthful, and recreative, to develop in each individual student a knowledge of an appreciation of sports in their relation to her daily code of living.
